

TWIN CITIES.COM PIONEER PRESS (Also in Politics in Minnesota e-letter)

http://www.twincities.com/news/ci\_12835934?source=rss&nclick\_check=1

Group considers appeal over transmission lines

Associated Press

Updated: 07/14/2009 05:18:04 PM CDT

A citizens group says it's considering legal action after Minnesota regulators declined to reconsider approval of a power line project that will touch four different states.

The Citizens Energy Task Force opposes the CapX2020 transmission line project, which eleven utilities plan to build in Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota and South Dakota.

The Minnesota Public Utilities Commission on Tuesday declined to rehear the case, making way for a possible appeal.

Also Tuesday, the PUC modified its requirement that the Brookings line from eastern South Dakota to the Twin Cities area carry wind energy and other renewables. The PUC allowed a way for the utilities to sidestep that if they demonstrate that meeting the rules isn't practical or isn't in customers' best interest.

Minnesota Commission Denies Petition to Reverse Power Line Decision

WKBT - 14 hours ago

A citizens group opposing a high-voltage power line project is considering legal action after a ruling Tuesday by a Minnesota commission. ...

Group Considers Appeal Over Transmission Lines

WCCO - 16 hours ago

Here is the latest North Dakota news from The Associated Press ...

KXMC - 18 hours ago

AP ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) A citizens group says it's considering legal action after Minnesota regulators declined to reconsider approval of a power line ...